Does Frontier Allow Flight Transfers?

The straightforward answer is: No, Frontier Airlines does not allow passengers to transfer tickets to another person. Unlike some airlines that permit name changes or ticket transfers, Frontier's policy is strict—once a ticket is purchased in your name, it cannot be transferred to someone else.

Why Does Frontier Prohibit Name Transfers?

Frontier Airlines, like many ultra-low-cost carriers, aims to keep costs low and streamline operations by limiting ticket changes. Allowing name transfers would complicate security checks, ticket management, and could lead to potential abuse or fraud. Therefore, Frontier requires the original passenger's name to match the boarding pass and government-issued ID.

📞 To learn more about why name transfers aren't allowed, speak with a Frontier representative at 📞 +1-877-622-0707.

What If I Need to Change the Name on My Ticket?

Frontier Airlines generally does not allow full name changes on a ticket. However, minor corrections, like fixing a spelling mistake or correcting an initial, may be permitted. Frontier charges a fee for name corrections, and the passenger must provide proof of the correct name.

📞 To request a name correction and understand the fees, call Frontier at +1-877-622-0707.

Options If You Can't Transfer Your Frontier Ticket

Since Frontier doesn't allow transferring tickets to others, here are your options if you can't use your booked flight:

1. Cancel and Rebook

You can cancel your ticket (subject to Frontier's cancellation policies and fees) and then have the other person book a new ticket in their name. Keep in mind that cancellation fees may apply, and fare differences might make this expensive.

📞 Call Frontier at 📞 +1-877-622-0707 to check cancellation policies and fees.

2. Use Travel Credits

If your ticket is non-refundable and you cancel, Frontier might issue travel credits instead of a refund. These credits can be used by the original passenger for future bookings.
